Personal data and personal data processing

Personal data is any kind of information that can directly (for example name or social security number) or indirectly identify or be linked to a living person. Examples of information that can be indirectly attributed to a living person are images and audio recordings that are processed in a computer without any names being mentioned.

All types of actions taken with personal data constitute personal data processing. Examples of usual processing are collection, registration, organization, structuring, storage, processing, transmission, and deletion.

Processors who are engaged may only process personal data in accordance with the purposes of the processing defined in a data processing agreement and the instructions that we have issued concerning the processing.

Independent controller

We also share your personal data with certain companies that are independent controllers. The fact that the company is an independent controller means that we are not the ones who determine how the personal data disclosed to the company will be processed. Independent controllers with whom we share your personal data are:

- Governmental authorities (the police, the Tax Agency or other authorities) if we are obliged to do so by law or in case of suspicion of crime.
- Companies that provide general goods transport (such as logistics companies and forwarders).
- Companies offering payment solutions (such as banks and debt collection agencies).
- Insurers who provide insurance for some of our products and services.

When your personal data is shared with a company who is an independent controller, it is that company's privacy notice and personal data management that apply to the processing of your personal data by that company.

Automated decisions and profiling

Profiling means that we analyse personal data about you to predict certain personal aspects about you. We profile you to be able to understand you as a member and to create personal marketing communications for you. Further information about our processing and for which purposes we perform profiling can be found under the headline This is how we process your personal data when you are a member at F24S. Examples of profiling activities that we perform:

- Based on data we collect such as gender, age, gym locations, duration of membership, we analyse and create a profile to predict which offers that are most relevant to you or to members that have a similar profile or interests.

- Understand which social channels you use or prefer based on your profile or interests to provide you with personal communications and offers.
- We analyse data from our members and their behaviour to be able to improve the business.

We do not carry out any so-called automated decision-making that has legal consequences or otherwise significantly affects you.

Transfer of personal data to a third country

In connection with our processing of your personal data, there will be a transfer to a third country.

Transfer will take place to the United States for which there is a decision from the European Commission that the United States ensures an adequate level of protection.

Transfer will take place to the following countries for which there is no decision on an adequate level of protection:

Risks and security measures

Fitness24Seven takes technical and organizational security measures to protect your personal data against loss and unauthorized access. This includes, for example, secure and private connections (such as VPN), encryption, and that access to your personal data is always limited to those employees who must have access to your personal data to perform their work duties. We continuously evaluate our systems and routines as well as our policies to ensure that they are safe and protected.

Which rights do you have in relation to our processing of your personal data?

You have several rights under the GDPR. If you wish to exercise any of your rights or have any questions, you can contact us. Contact details can be found at the top of this privacy notice.

Right to be informed	You have the right to receive information about how we process your personal data, which we provide you through this privacy notice. More information about this right can be found on the website of the Finnish Authority for Privacy Protection at The data subject's rights.
Right of access	You can request information as to whether we process personal data relating to you and, if so, receive a copy of the personal data processed - a so-called register extract - together with certain more detailed information. More information about this right can be found on the website of the Finnish Authority for Privacy Protection at The data subject's rights.

Right to rectification	We have a responsibility to ensure that the personal data we process is correct, but if you consider that personal data relating to you is incorrect or incomplete, you have the right to request that the information be corrected. More information about this right can be found on the website of the Finnish Authority for Privacy Protection at The data subject's rights.
Right to object	When we process your personal data within the framework of our legitimate interest, you have the right to object to the processing at any time. If we cannot show that there are legitimate grounds for continuing to process the personal data, we must cease the processing. You have always the right to object at any time to your personal data being processed for direct marketing purposes. If an objection to direct marketing is made, your personal data may no longer be processed for such purposes. More information about this right can be found on the website of the Finnish Authority for Privacy Protection at The data subject's rights.
Right to withdraw consent	If our processing of your personal data is based on your consent, you can withdraw consent at any time by request to our DPO. Withdrawal of consent does not affect the legality of the processing of your personal data that took place before the withdrawal. More information about consent as legal basis for processing personal data can be found on the website of the Finnish Authority for Privacy Protection at Lawful grounds for personal data processing.
Right to limitation of processing	In certain cases, for example if you have objected to the processing, you have the possibility to request a limitation of the processing of your personal data. By requesting a limitation, you have, at least for a certain period of time, the possibility to stop us from using the data other than to, for example, defend legal claims. You can also prevent us from erasing the data, for example if you need the data to claim damages. More information about this right can be found on the website of the Finnish Authority for Privacy Protection at The data subject's rights.
Right to erasure	In certain cases, you can obtain the erasure of your personal data. When your personal data is necessary for the purposes for which it was collected, is needed to fulfil a legal obligation or when we need to establish, to assert or defend legal claims, we cannot erase the data. More information about this right can be found on the website of the Finnish Authority for Privacy Protection at The data subject's rights.
Right to data portability	If we process personal data relating to you to fulfil an agreement, you have the possibility in certain cases to obtain your personal data to use it somewhere else, for example transferring the data to another personal data controller. More information about this right can be found on the website of the Finnish Authority for Privacy Protection at The data subject's rights.

Comments about our processing?

If you have any comments about our processing of your personal data, please contact us. You can find our contact details on top of this Privacy Notice.

You can also file a complaint at the Finnish Authority for Privacy Protection. Information about filing complaints is found on their website at <https://tietosuojafi/>

If you have suffered damages because your personal data has been processed in violation of applicable law, you may be entitled to compensation. You can then request damages from us or file a claim for damages in a general court. You can find our contact details on top of this Privacy Notice.
